preparedness parade, each one carrying a troop banner. The present plan is for the scouts and their captains to meet in front of Congress Hall on Flag day and not later than 12:30 o'clock. They will form in line there with their captains and march down to the Peace Monument and there join the parade. Every scout in Washington is ordered to re-port for this duty. All who have uni-forms are to wear them and the new troops are requested to appear in white middy blouses and skirts with tan or black shoes and stockings, and plain white duck or canvas hats.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Most men become experts at butting in.

Sometimes it is good for a man to have an active enemy.

Two women can remain good friends f they don't meet often. Silence has every other kind of a bluff backed off the boards.

It's easier to grasp some opportuni-ties than it is to let go of them. Every man expects to become great some day, but he keeps putting it off.

And it's as easy for a man to break a promise as it is for a woman to break a man. A man and his wife are different—also indifferent—after they have been married a few years.

The fatter a woman gets the easier it is for her to believe other women are unable to notice it.

Never judge a man by his relatives, instead of by his companions. Relatives are thrust upon him, but companions are usually selected by him-
